Flash video (FLV) is becoming more popular on the web since it can easily be embedded in a webpage and is supported by most operating systems with the Adobe Flash Player and web-browser plugin. It is the file format of choice for giants such as YouTube, Google Video and MySpace. Since the three listed sites contain millions of video clips, FLV files are spreading like wildfire across the web. This article will show how to get these files to play.
